A curious custom has been revived at the village of Castleaere, in Norfolk -that of blessing the crops. The parishloners gathered at the church and formed in procession, headed by the car and choir. After parading the vil lage they proceeded to visit the fields lage they proceeded to visit the needs or growing corn, at one of which a ser-vice was held, hymns sung, and a bless-ing pronounced by the vicar on the crops of the parish. The procession

then returned to the church, singing re
